Biographical Sketch

Captain John Grant, b. 1796 in Chester Co., Pa.; at 12 years of age came the chief support of his mother and eight brothers and sisters; 14 was repairing the machinery in a woolen mill; at 20 was married & working on the improving of the scoop dredges in Baltimore harbor, perfected a dredge still in use today.

In 1827 the U. S. Government sent him to Mobile to build dredges to be used along the Gulf Coast; in 1829 employed to build a rail from New Orleans to Lake Pontchartrain and as superintendent of road made many changes for the improvement of handling freight.

In 1838 began the dredging of a six-foot channel to connect Mobile and the Mississippi Sound, which had been pronounced impossible; completed channel is known today as Grant's Pass.

In 1840 moved his family to Pascagoula; dredged the east branch of Pascagoula River and thus diverted shipping from Gautier on the west branch.

John Grant has the distinction of having belonged at different times to the legislatures of three different states, Mississippi, Alabama, Louisiana; was living in Louisiana at the outbreak of the Civil War operating steamers across Lake Pontchartrain from New Orleans to Covington, La.

While his sons-in-law and grandsons were fighting for the Confederacy, he remained loyal to the North and, in consequence, lost almost all his property.

John Grant is buried in the Grant cemetery in Pascagoula where monument marks his grave and many of his children and a Historical Marker nearby commemorates the main events of his life.
